

Biographical note

Professor Potworowski has been funded continuously during his 34-year research career as an immunologist. He was a member of grant and fellowships committees at the Medical Research Council of Canada, the National Cancer Institute of Canada, at the Fond de la Recherche en Santé du Québec and the Cancer Research Society, as well as external referee for a number of agencies in Canada and abroad. He has been a member of editorial boards of several international journals. At the Armand-Frappier Institute, he developed and taught for over 15 years a master's level course on written and oral scientific communication. He is currently a consultant in scientific writing and leads workshops both in various Canadian and European institutions on the writing of articles and grant applications, on oral scientific presentations, and on interdisciplinary grantsmanship.